NUMBER 111

Conspicuous is the tall and small the head of the democratic ticket.

During the last three months the suicides in the United States number a little over 400—one to every 125,000 of the population.

The second place on the democratic ticket was offered to Colonel Vilas, whose nomination would have been unanimous, but he declined.

In Binghamton, New York, there is a club of "Plumed Knights" 100 strong, who vote for the first time this year. The president, though only 21 years old, was a Blaine delegate to Chicago.

When Ben Butler was at Chicago, claiming to have so much solicitude for the working men and pretending to be their representative, he had on his person $10,000 worth of diamonds.

It was Illinois Biglow who once said of the democrats, "that Providence fashioned them hollow, so that they might their principles swallow." A very good photograph of the democracy of 1884.

The democrats, at Chicago, showed their usual skillfulness in dodging when when it came to writing the tariff plank of the platform. It is just as Ben Butler said, they were afraid to meet the republicans on the tariff issue.

The democrats, prayed for the nomination of Blaine, Blaine was nominated and they began to growl and to squirm. The republicans hoped for the nomination of Cleveland, Cleveland was nominated, and the republicans are happy. This is the difference between the two.

It is stated that of the 22,000 Methodist ministers of the United States only 300 are democrats. The republican sentiment of the laity of the church is correspondingly large. The ministers of other orthodox churches stand in about the same relation to politics as the Methodists.

It is an oye to witness: The fund of $30,000 collected in the Coeur d'Alene mining region for the first baby born within the territory was awarded to the wife of a freight hand on the Northern Pacific, who walked twenty-five miles that her child might first see the light in accordance with the terms of the prize, and received the money.

When Colonel Vilas reached Madison from Chicago on Saturday, the democracy gave him a serenade, at which he made a speech. It was full of mud-throwing, as there was nothing else for the colonel to talk about. He spoke, however, in high terms of Hendricks, and when one democrat proposed three cheers for "Grover and Hendricks," the crowd laughed heartily, and quickly dispersed.

Mme. Patti has signed another engagement for this country next season. She wants to sing here again because there is more money in it than in Europe and then adds the London Word, "The fact is, that dire necessity and sheer misery force her to work for an existence. Her property in Wales is worth $300,000, her diamonds about $200,000, and, besides, all she has is barely more than a million dollars. You don't expect anybody to make both ends meet on such a pitiful allowance!"

One strong point the friends of Cleveland make for him, is that he had nothing to do with the democratic doctrine of 1880 or 1876, and therefore is stronger with the people. This was the position taken by the national democratic convention, exactly. The further a democrat is from representing democratic ideas, the better chance he has of being elected. The democrat confessed this by refusing to nominate other Bayard, Thurman, Tilden, Carlisle, or McDonald. These men have been prominent in public life. They are men of ability, but they have adhered to democratic ideas so long that they would not stand a ghost of a chance to be elected president. The party has so long been one of false pretences that a new man—one comparatively unknown—was necessary a candidate, and hence Governor Cleveland was nominated. This was a humiliating position for the democrats to be placed in, but it was the best they could do, and the masses of the party must hold their tongues. They probably will, so far as the convention is concerned; but when the voting time comes they will say with the ballot what they dare not say with the tongue.

THE CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK.

The Sunday Telegraph has been counting congressional chickens before they are hatched, and has this to say in regard to the First district: "Hon. L. B. Casswell, of Port Atkinson, one of the most substantial, hardest working and most successful men Wisconsin has had in congress, Walworth county will present Hon. T. D. Weeks, of Whitewater, an able lawyer, a clean man and who has made a good record in both branches of our state legislature. Racine is likely to have two promising candidates, Hon. J. Y. Quarles and H. A. Cooper, of Racine city. Mr. Quarles is a man of marked ability, has served in both branches of the legislature, is a first-class lawyer and a fine orator. Mr. Cooper is a young man, has been district attorney two or three times, was a delegate to the last national convention of his party, is a polished speaker and a growing man."

Kensel has good material in Colonel James H. Howe, Captain Charles Frantz and Mr. Simmons. Capt. Frantz is a representative German, has a good heart and a superb head, but is short an arm, having lost one while serving his adopted country in the great struggle to overcome armed treason. Rock it comes in at all, would pick its man from among Surgeon-General Henry Chandler's Rejoinder.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 14.—Secretary Chandler has written the following letter to Thomas A. Hendricks with regard to the frauds in the treasury department referred to in the latter in his speech at Indianapolis Saturday night:

WASHINGTON CITY, July 13.—Hon.

Thomas A. HENDRICKS, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.:

Sir—A candidate for vice president should speak with decent fairness. In your speech at Indianapolis Saturday night you said that the public should believe that it appeared by my testimony that frauds in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery in this department amounted during the past year to $10,000.

For the past year I have been a member of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery for a year ago; that after I was informed of the frauds I believed them, because members of congress had recommended the continuance of the chief of the Bureau, and that I took no adequate steps to correct them. I then said that the public should believe that it appeared by my testimony that frauds in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery in this department amounted during the past year to $10,000.

TODD'S INDIA PALE ALE.

The proprietor of Todd's Brewery begs to inform the public that he has introduced into his brewery the manufacture of
INDIA PALE ALE

This ale is brewed on the same principle as the celebrated ales of Bass, Allsop and others of Burton-upon-Trent, England.

Its Advantages

Will keep in any climate, and remain any length of time on draught.

PURITY.

Is brewed entirely from the finest description of malt, and judicious brewing of the hops of the Atlantic and Pacific states.

NO OTHER ADMIXTURE enters into the composition of this splendid Ale. In instances where it is required that it should have the malt and hop strength reduced to a maximum possibility, the alcohol property at a minimum, that desideratum is found in this wholesome Ale.

Where and When Grover Cleveland Was Born and What His Pub-

Sketch of Hendricks.

OMAHA, July 14.—M. Boussaud, a wealthy earth-owner, whose herds range in the undergrowth of northwestern Nebraska, has just returned from the annual "round-up" in that region, and relates a tale of the pining that he saw, and relives a tour of the orthodox Mazepa in his mind.
Boussaud reached his ranch about the middle of June he found his cowboys running a young man whom they had rescued from the back of a broncho. When discovered the young man was lashed to the horse entirely naked and unconscious. The man was about broken down, as if from long running, and cut the thongs and released the strange captive. This happened about two weeks before Boussaud's arrival, and during that time the stranger had laid in a shelter.

A few days before Boussaud left on his return journey to Omaha, having a little medical knowledge, he succeeded in restoring the patient to consciousness, and the recovery was rapid. When able to talk he said his name was Henry Burbank, that he was an Englishman, and 34 years of age. About three years ago at Palermo, England, he formed a partnership with a friend named Thomas Wilson, some years his senior, and with him came to America, to embark in the cattle business. They cast about for awhile and finally settled in northwestern Nebraska, where the range was unlimited, and borders few and far apart. They built a comfortable little log structure, where Wilson's young wife reigned as housekeeper, attended by two or three female domestics. Burbank, who is a handsome young fellow, found it agreeable, while Wilson was absent, to make love to the range, to make love to the fairer sex.

This continued for some months, until in the latter part of May one of the cowboys who had a grievance against Burbank, surprised him and Mrs. Wilson in a compromising situation, and reported it to the woman's husband, whose jealousy had already been aroused. That night Burbank was captured while asleep in bed with Wilson and three of his men, and bound before he had chance to make any resistance. After a hurried trial, Mrs. Wilson, Ethan, stripped of every article of clothing and bound on the back of a saddle horse, which was started off by a vigorous lashing. Before arriving at his destination, he was lashed about his terrible trip. He thinks that the courage was communicated on the night of May 27, and he was rescued on the morning of June 3, which would make seven days that he had been traveling about the plains on the back of his horse, back, without food or drink, and exposed to the sun and wind.

Wilson's ranch is about 200 miles from the spot where Burbank was found, but it is hardly probable that the bronco took a direct route, and therefore, must have cog-nized many miles of circuitous journey. When fully recovered, health, Burbank proposes to make a visit of retaliation upon Wilson, and when he will be located by Boussaud, upon those of the Ogallala Land & Cattle Company, whose range is near Omaha.

Break Each Other's Heads.

BELFAST, July 14.—The Orangeites of this city, who left home to participate in the procession at Navvy Saturday, in celebration of the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, met a party of Roman Catholics on their return home, in the act of destroying the triangular arches and other emblems erected by the Orangeites the day before.

The streets of the city were filled with Orangeites who had been engaged in the conflict, and many houses were destroyed.

A young lady of Knock, named Emma Kerr, was shot in the head by a shotgun in a fight with a boy, Frank Sibley. Her dress was torn to shreds, and she was bleeding and unconscious when she was found.
She can hardly survive her injuries.
